The local labor leaders are deeply chagrined over the failure of the labor parade last Monday. It was held under the auspices of the Trades Council, and only four unions, having about 350 men, took part in it. Five years ago the Trades Council, then public office by using their power as labor leaders in partisan politics. The acts of the State Arbitration Board, composed of professional labor agitators and Paterson, which board was abolished and a new one appointed last spring, alienated nearly all the New ark unions from the State Labor Federation, which has been run by McDonnel. It is proposed now to organize the labor unions on a reformed plan, to include the sailent features of the British system, and work along economic lines only, to the exclusion of politics and agitators.
